Homework is intended to reinforce work done in lessons and to encourage independent study skills. By gradually increasing the amount given as the children progress through the school, we aim to develop and support their ability to use their initiative and organise themselves to complete their work in the allocated time. Parents should encourage their children to finish tasks set within the time allowed, however extra time may be appropriate at your discretion.

Homework diaries are used from Year 3 onwards. The children are asked to write their homework in the diary under the relevant day. The diaries can also be used for communication between parents and teachers.

As a guide, the weekly homework should be:

- Reception Reading books, weekly phonics sounds and key words are taken home each week, starting once children have settled after first couple of weeks of autumn term. During the summer term the children take home one literacy homework and one numeracy homework each week, as well as their reading books.
- Year 1 Reading books taken home nightly. Spelling homework is given weekly, concentrating on the phonic word families. A weekly maths activity is also set.
- Year 2 Reading books taken home nightly and spellings once a week. One handwriting homework set each week, along with a phonics activity, maths calculations or maths problem solving activities. Unfinished work may also be sent home when necessary. Homework increases throughout the year, in preparation for Year 3.
- Year 3 Four homework sessions/week (each of 30 minutes) based on English, maths, science or topic work. Spellings set once a week and times tables practice (to work towards 'times tables' badges), as well as reading books taken home as appropriate. 3B have extra weekend homework in the autumn term, in preparation for 8+ exams.
- Year 4-6 As indicated by the homework timetable given to the girls in the autumn term: two English, two mathematics, one science, one humanities/French homework sessions per week.
- In Year 4 the homework sessions are 40 minutes; this increases to 45 minutes/session in Year 5 and to 60 minutes/session in Year 6.

Please note: In cases where a child is absent from school due to illness, we do not send work home, but encourage as much reading as possible in its place. Any work missed will be made up on return to school.

Internet Use for Homework

There may be occasions when older children are asked to research a topic by whatever means they might have at their disposal. This could include using the internet, although we never make this compulsory.

Holiday Homework

Reception-Year 2 children are given an optional homework pack. Reading, handwriting, revision of spellings, maths (number bonds) and tables practice (Year 2) are encouraged.

Year 2 boys are set holiday homework for the summer preceding their start in Year 3. This is to ensure that they start the academic year on the best possible footing in advance of their January 8+ exams. Year 2 girls are also set holiday homework for the summer preceding their start to Year 3.

Year 3B are set holiday homework in the run-up to their January exams. Optional homework is set during the Easter holidays.

Year 3G receive holiday homework during Christmas, spring and summer holidays.

In Years 4-6, compulsory holiday homework is set in English, maths and optional homework is set in science.

As a general rule, all children are also expected to read widely, revise spellings and practise number bonds/times tables, as appropriate.
